Direct constructions for subspace codes

Shuangqing Liu

Department of Mathematics, Suzhou University of Science and Technology

Abstract

Subspace codes have received a lot of attention due to their application in random network coding. Parallel construction and multilevel construction are two main direct constructions of subspace codes. In this talk, we will present several constructions based on multilevel construction and parallel construction, such as parallel multilevel construction, double multilevel construction and multilevel construction with graph matching.

E-mail address: shuangqingliu@usts.edu.cn